

Amendments to the Specification

Please amend the specification by replacing paragraph [0011] with the following rewritten paragraph.

[0011] A number of shortcomings are inherent in the previous security systems as outlined below. These limitations pertain to two distinct uses of security systems for a premise, namely those that notify a monitoring service, and those that notify an individual[.]] such as a remote user having a personal relationship with the premise, such as e.g. the owner of the secured premise[[s]]. A remote user having a personal relationship with the premise is defined herein as any individual not associated with a professional premise alarm system monitoring service.